SALEM ACADEMY

WINSTON-SALEM
NORTH CAROLINA

Around the Clock at Salem . . .

Around the clock at Salem are many varied academic, athletic, and social events, which fill the hours from morning until night. We shall each take with us memories of the moments which most impressed us and which we most enjoyed. We shall never be able to relive these hours, but we can take with us the knowledge, high principles, and friendship we have gained at Salem.

Honoring . . .

“Good night, girls.” This familiar phrase every night at bedtime has become as much a part of life at Salem as the cheerful smile and sincere desire to serve, of one of our most beloved advisors. Always within reach and always welcoming, she aids and gives us sound advice for our problems, whether they be personal or concerning school life. Patience, coupled with firmness when needed, is one of her most appreciated attributes. Her interest in Salem and all its students can only be equaled by our love and respect for her.

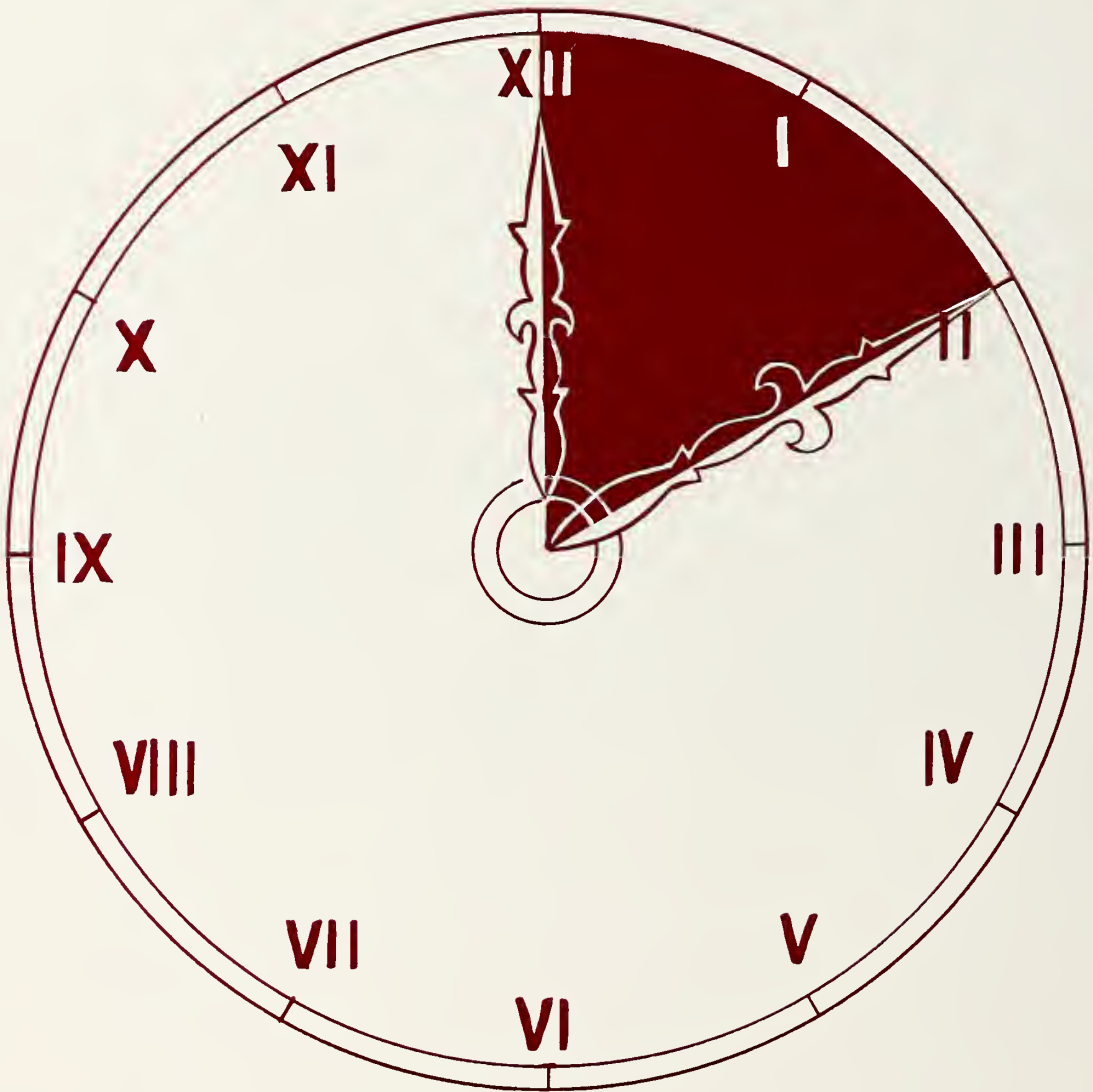

To show our sincere feelings we wish to honor you, Miss Hodges, by dedicating to you this, our 1955 Quill Pen.

Senior Class

Early in September the Seniors realize that "Time waits for no one," and they start planning Senior Day. On this day they take over the responsibilities, as well as the privileges, of the faculty, and rule supreme through "court" that night.

The main project for this class is the Senior Bazaar, which provides the largest source of income. In keeping with the Christmas season they sell Moravian stars and cookies. This money is used for a gift which is presented in the spring as a remembrance of the graduating class.

Toward the closing of their final year the Seniors and their sponsor, Miss Nunn, entertain the faculty at the Senior-Faculty Breakfast. The Senior members of the Scribblers' Club write the Class Day program, which is presented on the last day of school, and so brings to a close a year that will never be forgotten.

JUNIOR CLASS

"If you've got the money, Salemites, we've got the time." This seems to be the slogan of the Junior Class. They are eternally finding ways to enlarge their treasury in order to pay for the Junior-Senior. Keeping the Duck Inn, selling coffee, doughnuts, and pastries, giving movies and the spring fashion show, all help to increase this sum.

The Yuletide Season does not escape the watchful eyes of the Juniors, for they encourage you to buy Christmas lists, cards, and paper.

Under the guidance of Mrs. Prongay the Juniors finally reach their goal by giving a Junior-Senior dance which will remain in the memory of both classes.

SOPHOMORE CLASS

At the very beginning of the year the sophomores realize they have little "Time on their hands" because of the various activities in which they participate during the year. The two movies and the talent show which they sponsor help fill out the social life of Salem Academy.

The Juniors are more than glad to see Spring Vacation roll around, for this means that the Sophomores now take over the Duck Inn.

With the help of Mrs. Blackwell this class starts planning early for the Sophomore Tea Dance given in honor of the seniors. This affair, plus the crowning of the beauty queen, completes the Junior-Senior week-end.

FRESHMAN CLASS

At the first of the year some of us often wondered who raised and lowered the flag each day. Time soon told us that it was the faithful freshmen. The main goal toward which these girls strive is the carnival, given shortly after Christmas. Everyone looks forward to this class portrayal of the traditional fun house. To supplement this event and their treasury the Freshmen present a skit and an occasional movie during the year. The class sponsor, Miss Rawlins, is always there to lend a helping hand in these undertakings.

DIARY OF MARY A. WEAVER

September 7, 1965

Thursday

Dear Diary.

As I sit down tonight to write about my busy day, memories flow back to me, and I see again the girls of the class of '55 receiving their diplomas on that glorious night of May 31, 1955.

This morning as I stepped from my car, I saw several limousines drive around the "goose egg." These cars bore the Hotel Robert E. Lee insignia, and much to my surprise the class of '55 most gracefully stepped out of the cars. The reason for their being present was the annual Opening Chapel and the opening of the annex to the Carrie Schaffner side of the building.

These were the young ladies who donated the fund to furnish the art gallery where all our treasured portraits are to be kept. Each girl tried to return for this ceremony, and even though Bobbie Plummer and Priscilla Norris arrived only in time to finish the last stanza of "Standing at the Portals," the class had one hundred per cent attendance.

The first sound I heard was Marian Hutter screeching a hello to Margot Moore and saying, "How are things up Nawth?" I then heard Margot reply, "Teaching school was fun, but 'crum,' being a lawyer's wife is better. How is your marital status?"

"Well, this army life is quite unstable, but we are about to move into a penthouse on Riverside Drive," Marian answered.

Clarke Fowler, who was the next person I saw, had a pencil behind one ear and sketches under her arm. She said she wanted Miss Wheeler's opinion on the new Harrison-type barns.

As I was going down to chapel, I met Catherine Austin on the steps conversing in ten different languages. She seems to be wrapped up in her job as chief interpreter at the United Nations. Cathy Hyde and Sally Cochran were standing beside her, attired in fashionable dresses representing the latest Paris creations. Although my French is rusty, I understood enough to find out that Cathy is now a top Paris model and that Sally has just received her M.R.S. at the Sorbonne.

Upon entering the social room I heard a familiar scream. It was Judy Morton greeting Flo Robinson. Judy had just seen Flo's medal for the Nobel prize in literature for her book My Experiences as Chief Advisor to the President. Judy was in turn telling Flo of her experiences after being elected "Mother of the Year." Judy now has seven boys.

At that moment chapel began, and I noticed the class sitting together. It is amazing how ten years will change a girl. The last person I noticed before Dr. Gramley welcomed everyone was Pat Upton. The latest news from Pat is her appointment as lab technician at the new, ultra-modern medical center of doctors Ann Palmer and Anne Russ.

Tibby Ferrell, who led the National Anthem at the Flag Raising ceremony, is now preparing for her Carnegie Hall debut in October. The girls are to be congratulated for their fine job; the ceremony was just lovely.

Before I had time to catch my breath, we were on our way to open the new wing. While joining the others for this portion of our opening exercises, I talked about latest fashions with Carolyn Garrison, who has just returned from a trip to gay Paree.

The highlight of the ceremony came when the ribbon to the building was cut by Governor Eve Hoover. Eve is the first Republican governor North Carolina has elected in ninety-five years. The fast-talking lawyer turned to politics soon after she received her law degree from Duke.

I joined the girls at the hotel for lunch only to hear more up-to-the-minute news. Van Lindley has joined the WAVES, and now she and her Admiral husband are preparing to command a huge fleet of carriers. Martha Wheeler showed me pictures of her three carrot-topped offsprings. I understand that each is a child prodigy. She said they had just had their flu shots from the favorite pediatrician of all Salemites, Dr. Sherry Lynn.

Sallie Norton told us of her amazing trip to Europe and of her exciting marriage to Andre, the fulfillment of her life's ambition. Frankie Beman walked up to me just then to tell me of her recent killing on Wall Street. She says business life isn't as dull as it is made out to be.

Ann Fulenwider came in radiating her vivacious personality, which has made her the social leader of New York and Palm Beach. Ann said she enjoyed Joan Brooks' performance in the New Haven opening of her new musical.

Linda Brame told me good-bye in a rush since she is to play in Pinehurst in the Women's Open Golf Tournament tomorrow. Jenny Payne left with her to meet Richard in Pinehurst, where he is attending the North Carolina-South Carolina Dental Meeting.

I overheard Jane Kearns, Sallie Armfield, Mary Keith, and Gayle Cooper catching up on the latest personal news. Mary said that she and her husband are still at Fort Belvoir, where he is an instructor. Jane Kearns was telling them of the dinner-party she is planning with Jane Duncan. They have both been married for five years. Gayle Cooper and Sallie were discussing their respective husbands' positions at U.N.C. Sallie's spouse is a successful line coach at U.N.C. and Gayle's husband is building the new Zeta Psi fraternity house there.

Mary Moore, the social butterfly of Knoxville, told Betty Harmon of the party she is planning for Betty who will attend the Southeast lawyers' convention in Knoxville in November. I caught Priscilla Norris stepping into a cab bound for the airport and asked her to send us as soon as possible the sketches for the art lecture she is giving here next month so they could be mounted.

After I told Priscilla good-bye, there was a lump in my throat as I realized we would never relive the days of the class of '55 again. With sad feelings in my heart I came back to the Academy to finish straightening out new girls' schedules.

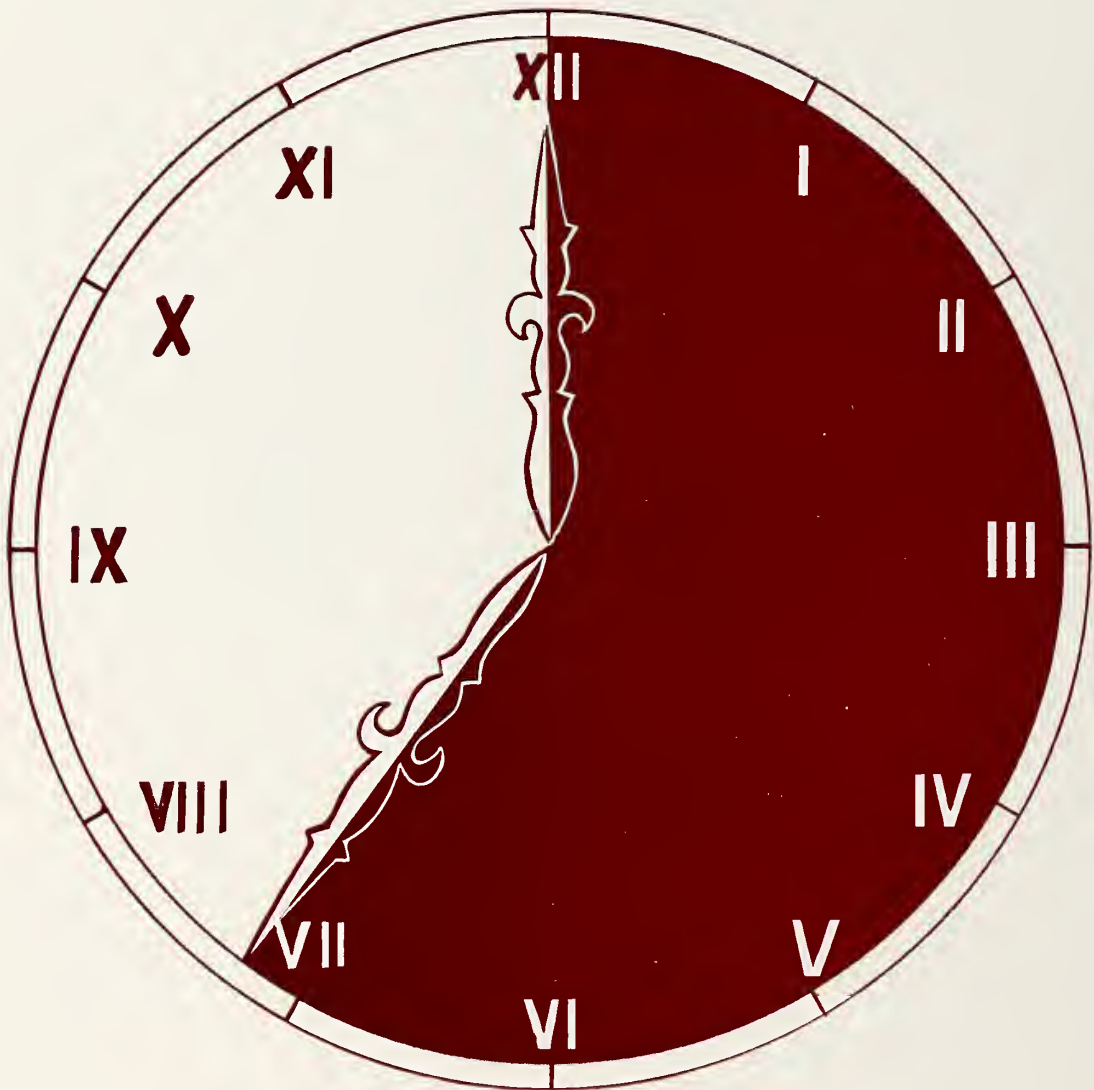

Isn't it funny how our dreams and ambitions sometimes come true?

STUDENT COUNCIL

It is the duty of every Salem girl to uphold and follow the rules and regulations of Salem. To help and guide us along these lines, a Student Council is provided. It is composed of a President, one representative from each of the six halls, two Senior Counselors, and a day student representative. The Student Council meets once a week to discuss affairs concerning dormitory life. It tries to iron out any problems which have arisen, and to make new rules which it believes are necessary and which will be beneficial to everyone. A Student Council member stands ready and willing to help any student in doubt or trouble.

The Student Council sponsors an opening banquet, held at the beginning of the school year, and the Christmas banquet and servants' party. At the close of each year Spirit Fire, an impressive candlelight service held in the dell, is given by the Student Council. At this time newly elected Student Council members take over for the coming year.

THESE GIRLS MAINTAIN SALEM'S HIGH STANDARDS OF HONOR. First Row: Janie Deane, Mary Jo Futrell, and Mary Wiley. Second Row: Jane Duncan, Sallie Armfield, Ann Fulenwider, Tibby Ferrell, and Esther Booc.

The honor system is the most valuable and treasured aspect of life at Salem. The Honor Council, composed of the President of the Student Government, two seniors, two juniors, one sophomore, one freshman, and a faculty advisor, is the exponent of the honor system. Every girl is on her personal honor to report herself to the Honor Council if she finds she has broken a rule. The Honor Council does not function to punish girls, but rather to help them understand the principle behind each rule. Usually meetings are held after light bell to discuss behavior unfitting to the honor system. It is through the personal integrity of each girl that our honor system is upheld.

HONOR COUNCIL

SPIRITUAL STEERING WHEEL

The spiritual atmosphere here at Salem Academy can be accredited to the Spiritual Steering Wheel, which sponsors the nightly devotions given by the girls on each hall, and Sunday vespers, as well as the Friday night devotions presented by members of the faculty in the social room. Wherever devotions are held the girls gather in their pajamas, carrying their favorite stuffed animal, to enjoy the rich benefits of these informal "chats" in God's presence.

This year something new has been added, the "tiny chapel," given by the generous parents of an Academy student, Mr. and Mrs. R. C. Carmichael, and last year's Senior class. It was formally dedicated on October 10, 1954, by Dr. Ronthaler. Many hall devotions are held in the flickering candlelight of this small room with its rows of tiny pews. Also, a few moments spent alone in this quiet nook, away from the bustle of everyday routine, means very much to each girl here.

Religious Emphasis Week is also promoted by the S.S.W. After Christmas vacation the S.S.W. invites a noted speaker to bring his message to us each day in chapel and to chat informally throughout the day with the girls.

The purpose of the S.S.W. is to instill in each girl, through prayer, the faith so necessary after Salem days are long passed.

HERE WE FIND THE DEVOTIONAL LEADERS OF SALEM IN THE TINY CHAPEL. First Row: Anne Russ, Suzanne Porter, Sue Buchanon, and Mary Ann Medford. Second Row: Marion Hutter, Ellen Foscue, Eve Hoover, Mary Keith, and Jane Kearns. Third Row: Carol Jenkins, Mary Jo Futrell, and Gayle Cooper.

YOU MAY FIND SOME FUTURE WRITERS AND JOURNALISTS HERE. First Row: Ann Palmer, Judy Morton, Sherry Lynn, Eve Hoover, Carolyn Garrison, Janie Deane, Clarke Fowler, and Frankie Beman. Second Row: Bucky Poole, Nona Porter, Judy Cox, Mary Ann Medford, Bettie Carmichael, Bebe Whitaker, Ellen Foscue, Miss Fisk, Nancy Coulter, Joan McClain, Priscilla Norris, Annie Gray Calhoun, Lee Taylor, and Pat Upton.

Attention! Do you often wander off into a different world—a world of fantasy? An outlet for your fanciful imagination may be found in the Scribbler's Club. This club, sponsored by Miss Nancy Fisk, is an organization which encourages girls with talent in creative writing to express themselves. This is a very active club and requires a lot of work from its members. In early fall it gives its traditional party for the entire student body. It publishes two papers at different times in the year, Quill Pencil, which is devoted to creative writing, and Pencil Shavings, which reports current events of interest at Salem.

Pencil Shavings is also sent out during the summer to spread news of old students' vacation exploits and to welcome new students. Informal monthly meetings are held during which the members, while drinking coffee, plan and discuss their papers and exchange ideas about good creative writing.

SCRIBBLER'S CLUB

QUILL PEN STAFF

The purpose of the Quill Pen Staff, as of any annual staff, is to compile a book of pictures and explanatory articles which bring back old memories of school days. The editorial staff, led by editor-in-chief Sally Cochran, and the business staff, headed by its manager, Ann Fulenwider, attempt to produce and publish such a book through long hours of planning and work. While the editorial staff chooses the theme (long kept secret), plans the dummy, arranges for the photography, and writes the copy, the business staff, in order to meet the all-important budget, solicits ads from Winston-Salem business firms, parents of Salemites, and other out-of-town prospects.

The annual is dedicated and presented to the faculty and student body at the Senior Farewell Banquet in the spring.

One spends a lot of time and work as a member of the Quill Pen Staff, but at the Farewell Banquet she gains the self-satisfaction of having helped complete a book of memories for every Salemite.

ALWAYS STRIVING TO MEET THAT DEADLINE are, First Row: Lou Scales, Carolyn Garrison, Tibby Ferrell, Ann Fulenwider, Sally Cochran, Carol Jenkins, Ann Kearns, and Priscilla Norris. Second Row: Nan Sellers, Judy Cox, Martha Wheeler, Martha Ely, Joan Brooks, Nancy Beasley, Ellen Foscutt, Noel Hollingsworth, Lucretia Seiwerts, Bebe Whitaker, Linda Brame, Bettie Carmichael, Jane Kearns, Nona Porter, Mary Ann Medford, Sallie Armfield, Van Lindley, Cathy Hyde, Peggy Harry, Gayle Cooper, Sallie Norton, Pat Murray, Sandra Edgerton, Clarke Fowler, and Frankie Beman.

"WHICH COSTUME SHALL WE USE FOR KATE HARDCASTLE?" decide our young actresses. First Row: Sherry Lynn, Joan Brooks, Carol Jenkins, Ann Palmer, and Pat Upton. Second Row: Lucy Meade, Annie Gray Calhoun, Martha Wheeler, Nona Porter, Tibby Ferrell, Flo Robinson, Eve Hoover, and Frankie Beman. Third Row: Nancy Coulter, Pat Spencer, Sallie Norton, Miss Strunk, Mary Liz O'Hara, Bobbie Plummer, Carolyn Garrison, and Jane Richards. Not Pictured: Cathy Hyde.

The Dramatics Club is a group of hard working young ladies who have established an important name for themselves, as well as a goal greatly desired by every girl who has a flair for drama. When a student has earned ten points by participating in plays or working on one of the many committees backstage, she is entitled to membership in the club. The privilege of membership entitles a student to attend the Little Theater productions.

During the first semester the club gives three one-act plays under the direction of Miss Sheila Strunk. "Lilliam," "With the Help of Pierette," and "Culture." which was given "in-the-round," started the season off with a bang. At Christmas the Dramatics Club and the Glee Club collaborate in presenting the Christmas Program and later in the year, an operetta. It is also the custom to present one three-act play which is a highlight of second semester.

Many hours of hard work go into the production of a play here at Salem. The actresses spend many hours of their free time learning and rehearsing lines, but here the girls who work unseen behind the stage are given their laurels also; thus, everyone who is interested has her chance to shine.

DRAMATICS CLUB

GLEE CLUB

With very few exceptions every girl at Salem makes Tuesday and Friday a red letter day on her calendar, for this is when the Glee Club meets. One needn't stand out in vocal ability to contribute to this aspiring group under the capable direction of Miss June Samson.

Auditions are held at the beginning of the year for the triple quintet, which is composed of girls with exceptionally good voices. These girls present special numbers, and their first performances have done justice to Miss Samson's choice as well as to each member.

The club's first public performances this year were as guests of the Home Moravian

Church and as entertainment for the Patron's Tea in November. The Glee Club works very hard on the Christmas Program and as a result gives a performance of high caliber.

The Glee Club's main event, aside from the Christmas Program, is the operetta given during second semester. Along with the Dramatics Club the girls present a top-notch performance.

Ending the year's commencement recital is the final function of the Club. Even though this means losing some of its members, the girls who are to return are fired with the enthusiasm which will make next year's Glee Club "better than ever."

STOP A WHILE AND LEND AN EAR TO SOME BEAUTIFUL MUSIC. First Row: J. Brooks, T. Ferrell, V. Lindley. Second Row: F. Beman, J. Cox, M. Wheeler, J. A. Overmyer, M. A. Medford, M. H. Finch, N. Broyhill, M. Stotts, J. Duncan, Mary Moore, B. Ivey, A. Freeze, B. Harmon, C. Rice, M. L. O'Hara, and Margot Moore. Fourth Row: C. Walker, B. Carmichael, B. Whitaker, J. Morton, J. Deane, and E. Wiley, C. Garrison, J. Kearns, P. Upton, P. Harry, P. Norris, M. Arnold, P. Spencer, J. Oliver, M. Ely, N. Porter, and S. Lynn. Not Pictured: C. Hyde.

DANCE COMMITTEE

It is the responsibility of the Dance Committee to plan the dance themes and to decorate to the fullest extent for the many dances held during the year with the exception of Junior-Senior. This is a hard task, but each girl appreciates their many efforts when she finds herself dancing to dreamy music and surrounded by the beautiful, enhancing decorations which bring out the all important theme. The Dance Committee works arduously and deserves a big hand of thanks.

Every member of the student body spends some time on one of the six committees that direct many phases of our school life here at Salem. These committees are headed by a committee chairman whose duty it is to see that her committee carries out its aims and is well organized. The Service Committee is in charge of the "Lost and Found" sales, straightening classrooms, placing napkin rings, and acting as switch board messengers. The Social Committee plans the birthday banquets, teas, and some Saturday night programs. The Good Will Committee sees that the girls in the infirmary get their books and assignments, and that the kitchen rules are posted and observed. Arranging chapel programs is the duty of the Program Committee. The Community and World Service Committee collects contributions for the World Service Fund and sponsors the adoption of a foster daughter. The aim of the Standards Committee is to keep the standards of the individual students and of the school as a whole on a high level.

SPORTS

ATHLETICS

Throughout the year shouts of "Go Purples!" and "Come on Golds!" can be heard ringing over the campus, for athletics play a large role in the life of every Salem girl.

The drawing of names for the Purple and Gold teams during the first week of school is the start of all athletic activities, and the presentation of awards and the coveted team cup ends them.

Between these two events a variety of sports is offered here at Salem, both individual and team sports. Sportsmanship is always stressed and teamwork is valued highly. Under the leadership of Mrs. Prongay, the director, and Linda Brame and Ann Palmer, heads of the Purple and Gold teams, spirit runs high throughout the year and all sports are equally important. In early fall swimming, tennis, and volley ball are offered. Next come soccer and hockey, then the basketball and speedball season. Spring is soon upon us, and with it come golf and softball. Many other sports are brought in throughout the year.

Each girl has a personal goal to reach, as letters are given to all who accumulate three hundred and fifty points in the various sports by the end of the year. At the same time each girl works with the other members of her team to gain the most points for the cup.

Yes, athletics are important here at Salem; in addition to helping the girls improve their abilities, ideals are gained by this program which will never leave us in life.

TEAM HEADS

The Athletic Council is the governing body for all athletic activities at Salem. It is composed of the heads of the Purples and Golds, Linda Brame and Ann Palmer, and fourteen girls who are the heads of the major and individual sports. The athletics' instructor, Mrs. Prongay, sponsors the Athletic Council and its activities.

In the fall and spring morning walks are sponsored by this body, and throughout the year various team games and tournaments are held. In these activities fine sportsmanship is shown, and team spirit runs high.

Among the highlights of the school year are the Athletic Banquets given at the end of each sport season. However, the very top moment is Recognition Day.

The awards for the year are then presented by the heads of the Purple and Gold teams, and the coveted cup is awarded. These presentations have become symbols of many hours of both work and fun, and happy is the girl who receives an award, whether it be a Freshman letter or a Senior loving cup.

The Athletic Council makes decisions which it hopes will lead to many happy hours for every Salem girl, and its work is rarely in vain.
